"It's wonderful," cried Mrs. Mary Alice Bailey Lawlor of Weston today when she learned that she had been granted a divorce and custody of her three-year-old daughter, Jane, shown with her. Judge Arthur Beane of Middlesex court ruled against her husband, John K. Lawlor, Boston salesman. He has suit pending against her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey. Witnesses had testified to lively parties at which Mrs. Lawlor had been spanked by male guests. "This verdict vindicates me," she said.

CHIEFS TO HEAR RADIO TERROR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—Civilization is going to be "destroyed" again—but privately; not over the radio—so the seven-man Federal Communications Commission can pass judgment.

Youth Risks Life to Tear Down Red Flag

Special to Boston Evening American
CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Fremont Petty is a 16-year-old American who doesn't like the red.

Petty, a high school sophomore, was sitting in his home yesterday, idly reading a newspaper, when a friend dropped in and mentioned the fact that a Communist red hammer-and-sickle flag was flying from atop the 75-foot flagpole in the yard of the neighborhood elementary school.

Someone, his friend told Fremont, had climbed the pole during the night, had fixed the Communist flag on the pole and had fouled the ropes so that it could not be lowered.

Fremont said nothing. He went to the basement of his home, charged into his old clothes, then, taking his hunting knife with him, he walked to the school yard. There he saw a group of youths staring up at the flapping Red flag.

He went to the base of the 75-foot pole, clamped his knife between his teeth, then started climbing.

Within four minutes he had completed his up-and-down mission, at the end of which he rubbed his skinned left leg, threw the Red flag to the ground and said:

"No Communist flag will fly over America if I have anything to say about it."

Later the banner was burned by police. Thanking them, young Petty said:

"My parents always taught me the merits of American democracy. My teachers in the public schools have shown me conclusively that this is the only land of absolute freedom, liberty, and justice."

"My heart told me what to do when I heard of a Red flag waving where I knew only Old Glory belonged."

Stocks Lose Early Advance

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Stocks encountered considerable profit-taking in today's market after selected issues had pushed up fractions to $2 a share in early dealings.

Steels led the initial upswing, but most subsequently yielded the largest part of their gains. Rubbers, feeling better despite the wage decision, generally tacked on modest plus signs. Specialties were favored.

While leaders were well down from the top near the final hour, advances predominated.

Some of the commissioners, including Chairman Frank K. McNinch, didn't hear the Columbia Broadcasting System's coast-to-coast radio dramatization of H. G. Wells' "The War of the World," Sunday night, which apparently caused more fear and excitement among persons throughout the land who did not know it was a play than any other national broadcast.

In response to the commission's request the Columbia Broadcasting System today delivered to McNinch shiny wax discs embodying an electrical transcription of the startlingly realistic broadcast. The dramatization created a furor among radio listeners who did not hear, or wait to hear, that the realistic news bulletins describing the destruction being wrought in New Jersey and New York by animal-like creatures which landed here from the planet Mars were all a part of the radio play.

Stating that in his opinion "any broadcast that creates such general panic and fear as this one is reported to have done is, to say the least, regrettable," McNinch reserved judgment until the full commission hears the transcription of the hour-long fantasy and makes a thorough study.

While complaints against the broadcast continue to pour upon the commission, today officials of the broadcasting company and Orson Welles, star of the "Mercury Theater of the Air," who wrote the radio adaptation of the fantastic book and played the stellar role, regretted that the play had caused such alarm.

Commission officials privately stated they were powerless to do more than reprimand the company and warn it against putting on similar "too realistic" programs without fuller explanations that they are fiction.

But the Columbia Broadcasting System already has announced its program department will discontinue realistic technique "of a simulated news broadcast within a dramatization when the circumstances of the broadcast could cause immediate alarm to numbers of listeners."

Woolsey Mourned By Film World

MAJIBU BEACH, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP)—The film colony and a world of fans today mourned one of the screen's top comedians, bespectacled, cigar chewing, wise cracking Robert Woolsey.

Death came to the elder member of the Wheeler and Woolsey team at his beach home here, after an 18-month illness which had forced his retirement from pictures.

BROADCAST of H. G. Wells thriller by Orson Welles, center, being interviewed by the press, startled entire nation with its realistic terror. Requests have been made of the radio company to rebroadcast the play.

Grid Pool Fails To Pay Winners

Exposed as a "racket" in the Boston Sunday Advertiser's "Green Magazine" this week, Greater Boston's newest fake football pool syndicate blew up with a resounding bang today, when "winners" found themselves unable to collect.

Quiz War Vet On Hotel Fires

A World War naval ensign, still suffering from effects of a head injury caused by explosion of an airplane cylinder head, was held on suspicion of arson today in connection with three fires in the LaSalle Hotel, Saturday night.

The ex-ensign, admittedly the inmate upon various occasions of mental hospitals, was taken into custody when he returned to the hotel and registered this morning.

Hotel attaches identified him as the one of whom they are suspicious, and his handwriting, it is alleged, showed that he was at the hotel Saturday.

His discharge papers identified him as the son of a Vermont missionary, and specified that he can speak French, German, Arabic, Turkish, Armenian, Greek, Latin, Bulgarian and Russian.

Coma Woman Near Tech

Victim of a mysterious coma that baffled Cambridge City Hospital doctors, a well-dressed woman, about 60, was found unconscious today in the rear of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge.

She remained unidentified at the hospital, where physicians diagnosed her condition as possibly due to shock.

Police described her clothing as a blue flowered dress, black shoes, gray stockings, black hat with blue ribbon and light coat. She wore several rings, including a white gold wedding ring, a gold ring with ruby, another set with a green stone and a gold signet ring.

In her handbag were gold-rimmed spectacles.

Hall Charges of Wife's Infidelity Are Quashed

Charges of unfaithfulness brought against pretty, 37-year-old Mrs. Margaret L. Hall of Brighton by her husband, Walter S. Hall, Boston bank clerk and former dancing instructor, were thrown out of court today by Judge John V. Mahoney.

He announced he would expunge from the record testimony offered in support of allegations of misconduct between Mrs. Hall and Dr. Adam E. Cole, well-to-do and middle-aged Swampscott physician.

The judge publicly reprimanded one witness, Walter S. Hall, Jr., Mrs. Hall's stepson.

EXONERATES DOCTOR
Then Judge Mahoney declared Dr. Cole's name would be stricken out as co-respondent.

Sudden action of the judge interrupted a crowded hearing in Suffolk probate court, where evidence was being heard in Hall's divorce action, brought on grounds of infidelity.

Judge Mahoney said counsel for both parties had agreed to waive the infidelity charge, and that he would go on with the case only to hear evidence in support of Mrs. Hall's cross-claim for divorce.

An early witness called by Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, counsel for Mrs. Hall, was Catherine Maurier of Appleton street, South End.

HAD BLACKED EYE
She testified she and Mrs. Hall were employed together at a Back Bay hotel in 1936 as telephone operators.

Q—Did you ever see Mrs. Hall with a black eye? A—Yes, on Sunday, August 16, 1936.

Q—Did she tell you how she came by this black eye? A—She did.

Q—Did you see her the night before? A—Yes.

Q—At what time? A—When I relieved her at midnight.

Q—Did she have the black eye then? A—She did not.

Q—Did you ever see Mr. Hall at the hotel? A—Yes, often.

SAW HIM STRIKE HER
Q—What can you recall about his conduct? A—On one occasion

Peace Parley On Gas Strike

In an effort to settle the day old strike of 110 employees of Brockton Gas Light Company, both sides in the controversy met with the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation at the State House today.

Earlier in the day John L. Campos, labor representative of the board, tried to effect a settlement.

Postpone Irwin Trial Until Nov. 7

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The trial of Robert Irwin, 30-year-old sculptor charged with the murder of Veronica Gedeon, photographer's model, her mother and Frank Byrnes, a lodger, was postponed again today until November 7. It had been set for this Thursday.

Father Runs Mile And Half in Vain With Dying Baby

Racing a mile and a half through the early morning with a dying baby in his arms, then virtually commandeering a cab to carry him the rest of the way to Boston City Hospital, John Daniel Robery arrived there today only to hear doctors announce the child was dead.

The infant, John, was smothered while sleeping between his parents at their home in Millmont street, Roxbury Crossing. Police and firemen, summoned by neighbors disturbed by the screams of the wife and mother, arrived just behind the father at the hospital.

They continued to use inhalators for more than an hour, but without any response.

Mrs. Robery discovered the tragedy when she arose before dawn to feed another of her four children.

The father got into his clothes as fast as he could and started on the wild chase against death as soon as both realized the child was in danger.

He could not sight a cab until he had run to Dudley and Washington streets.

Naval intelligence officers, suddenly entering the case today, announced that the belongings of "Count" Gustaf von Frederick zu Brandenburg, under arrest here on a larceny charge, will be seized for investigation.

They asserted that he admitted in questioning at police headquarters that he was an officer of the German naval intelligence service during the war.

The property specifically referred to by the naval men is, it was reported, a trunk now checked in the Pennsylvania station in New York City.

FACES NEW WOES
No intimation of what the U. S. agents expected to find was contained in the announcement, but police said the inquiry was ordered in connection with the general alarm over alleged espionage in the United States.

As the Navy swung into action, the count, not so dapper as he was when taken into custody yesterday afternoon, faced two other inquiries—military and immigration—as well as larceny charges, centering around alleged loans to him of $30,000, by a Boston meat product manufacturer.

"I have done nothing to anybody," the count reiterated while awaiting arraignment.

At the arraignment, before Judge Joseph Riley in the municipal court, he was ordered held in bonds of $40,000 for further hearing November 10—this despite pleas of his two lawyers, Edward McGonagle and Joseph Klarfeld.

DEMANDS HIGH BONDS
"He lives well," said McGonagle, "and has money in his own right. He borrowed money and signed notes for every cent obtained from this complainant."

The specific complaint upon which he was arraigned was the alleged larceny of $30,000 from William F. Handeschumacher, wealthy meat packer.

The complainant was in court with Theodore von Rosenzweig, his attorney, and the Danish vice-consul.

Police insisted on the high bail, pointing out that the "count" is subject to other inquiries, notably the naval and immigration probes.

The immigration inquiry was contended by Inspector John B. Bailey, who reported that the "count" told him he had lost his passport and all identification papers.

Murder on Alcatraz

Thrilling Fact — Not Fiction

By P. F. REED

San Francisco counterfeiter, who has just completed a four-year term on Alcatraz, and who continues today his thrilling story of sensational events in the Devil's Island prison.

Copyright, 1935, by San Francisco Examiner and International News Service

With each blow of their hammers, Limerick and Franklin put another nail in the coffin of a plan that was going to send 300 convicts home.

The master minds have overlooked two thin sheets of celluloid—celluloid which is glued between the sheets of glass which are in the windows that Limerick and Franklin are pounding on.

That makes the glass shatterproof; it is safety glass, and that little detail has been overlooked.

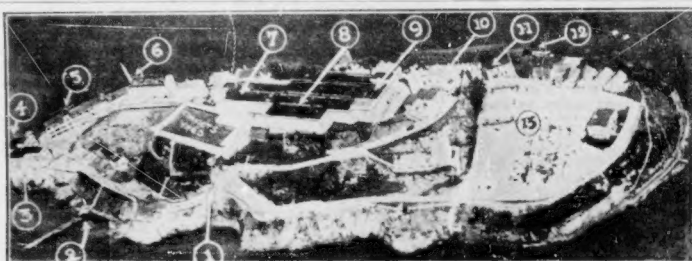

Neither Limerick's hammer nor Franklin's hammer smashed those panes and gave them the chance to jump in the tower, and take Stites and his arsenal. The dime's worth of celluloid stopped them.

They'd strike a blow, and the hammer would go through just as if it was going through a thick chunk of cardboard, and they'd have to pull the hammer out again. That's what finally gave Stites the alarm. He heard the blows and saw two cons whaling away at the window. Then he picked up his .45 automatic and let fly.

He squeezed the trigger four or five times, and bullets ploughed through the safety glass, and one caught Limerick over the eye.

LUCAS WAS DELAYED
Limerick whipped around, and staggered in a half circle, and fell. They didn't move him for half an hour.

Stites shifted and began firing at Franklin. A slug caught him below the shoulder, and spun him around, and he pitched, face down, on the barbed wire which juts

Airplane view of the Island of Crime outlines the "Rock's" features:

1—Guard tower, where a constant vigil is kept to forestall any possible attempts at freedom.

2—The wharf on the water, convenient landing for food and supplies from the mainland.

3—Furniture shop. Here convicts "earn their keep" in wood-working and upholstery.

4—The shoe shop. It was in this building that the attempted break told in today's story took place.

5—Laundry, where inmates clean and press soiled uniforms under watchful eye of armed guards.

6—Power house, which supplies current to the little city in itself, built on Pacific rock.

7—Mess hall and kitchen. Strict silence is maintained while convicts eat.

8—Main cell blocks, home of the most dangerous criminals in the United States.

9—Administration buildings and warden's office, seat of justice on the Island of Crime.

10—Warden's home. Sentries keep constant watch on the "boss" of the island and his family.

11—Guards' quarters. Alcatraz guards are highly trained, must be crackerjack machine-guns.

12—Landing dock. At this point prisoners step on Alcatraz soil after a trip from San Francisco.

13—Guards' recreation yard. To preserve keen minds, guards are offered every playtime facility.

out from the roof. He still held that he fired a second shot at Franklin—this time with a rifle—because Franklin raised up to throw the hammer at him. Well—Franklin wasn't throwing any hammers backward, ever his head.

While the shooting was going on, Lucas finally made the roof.

Something, apparently, had delayed him. The Rock believed it was lack of enthusiasm.

When he did make it, the heat was on, and Lucas didn't ask any questions. He never did get erect. He took a long, racing-dive, which put him under the tower. He stayed there till things cooled off and guards assured him the shooting was over.

When Stites' rescue began to cough, Stewart, the other guard, came running. "I don't think he ever did mix in the squabble."

FUDDLE OF BLOOD

But he and a half dozen other guards and freemen were on the roof inside of five minutes.

One carried a gas gun, that looked as big as a cannon, and another was making passes with a hand grenade—the same kind of grenade used in the trenches during the big war.

I could see him standing over Franklin, and I knew he was threatening to let that hand grenade go.

Franklin, still stretched out on the wire, had come to, and he twisted his neck around to see who was giving him orders. Then, and not until then, Franklin dropped his hammer.

I saw it drop, head first, and fall three stories, and hit the pavement and bounce away from a puddle of blood which Franklin was making—and kept on making for 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, things were happening inside the shops. Cons dropped their work, rushed to the windows and rubbered at the roof.

They kept rubbering even when the guards pleaded with them to get back and warned them that they might collect a bullet or two from the towers. They just looked

What Went on Before

In the first installment of a thrilling, factual narrative, based on careful observations during 49 months' imprisonment on Alcatraz Island, P. F. Reed, counterfeiter, told yesterday of the murder of Royal Cline.

He disclosed how the killing came as part of a desperate plan for a general jail delivery, a plan by which convicts hoped to take over the entire island.

In furtherance of that plan, he recounted, Convicts Limerick, Franklin and Lucas crawled through a third-floor shop window and made their way to the roof, hoping to surprise and overpower Guard Harold Stites inside his tower.

Unobserved, Limerick and Franklin reach the tower, find its door locked, and with hammers begin pounding on the window.

The narrative continues today with revelation of the fatal flaw in the elaborate plan, showing how the break failed because the plotters overlooked "a dime's worth of celluloid."

New Ford Plant To 'Awake N. E.'

SUDBURY, Nov. 1.—"New England needs to wake up to the fact that here is the greatest potential living in the world."

It's Henry Ford speaking. It's Henry Ford giving consideration to the present economic plight of a locally he loves.

It is a very tangible something, a simple basic something. He intends at once to build a large plant at Sudbury which will give work to many thousands.

N. E. DESIRABLE

"These green fields," says Mr. Ford, and his arm sweeps out over the side of the shiny new car in which he is sitting. "These green fields and natural resources make New England one of the most desirable places in the world for industry and agriculture."

And he intimated that his own pet remedy for the ills of the nation has nothing to do with world relief programs, pump-priming and other administration efforts, but that he favors a back-to-the-land movement.

"Workers of this country," he said drily, "will have to toil 50 hours to make up for every single hour of loafing permitted on WPA and other relief projects."

WILL SAW WOOD

The new plant, he said, will be devoted to the manufacture of mining and agricultural machinery.

He refused to make known the exact location, but said it will take power from Hop Brook, which runs through property he controls here. He pointed out that a dam has already been constructed.

Ford spent yesterday inspecting storm damage to his properties and, with his local manager, went to Framingham where they purchased a boiler for a sawmill.

"There's a lot of good wood around here," he said, surveying trees uprooted by the storm, "and we're going to use it."

Save Man Who Dives Off Bridge

While scores of persons bound for work watched, Franklin Butler, 63, superintendent of a downtown Boston building, plunged from Charlestown bridge today and was rescued from drowning by two drawtenders.

The latter, Leo Foley of Dorchester and Edward Fidler of Charlestown, attracted by cries of the onlookers, rushed to Butler's aid. He was unconscious when dragged from the water.

"I don't know why I did it," Butler was quoted as saying by police.

He was taken to City Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list because of shock and immersion.

Butler's home is in Fremont avenue, Everett.

$5000 Reward Up for Gunmen

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (INS).—Search for the gunmen who killed Fireman Thomas J. Hitter, 32, before relieving him of $2400, the salaries of 25 fellow firemen, was spurred today by a $5000 reward.

One gunman shot Hitter fatally and then snatched an envelope containing the cash from the victim's pocket before he joined two or three companions and escaped in an automobile.

On their honeymoon today were Samuel Fireman of Columbia road, Dorchester, and his bride, the former Eleanor May Fisher of Woodchester drive, West New. They were married by Rabbi Samuel N. Sherman at Hotel Brunswick and will live in Brookline. Fireman was a former English high school athlete.

Mrs. Nichols' Death by Fall

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 1.—Examination of the body of pretty Mrs. Marion Timbie Nichols, daughter of a professor at M. I. T., today disclosed that she had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage before her mysterious death.

Mrs. Nichols, former resident at Newton, was found lightly clad and dying from apparent head injuries in the street near her Evanston home.

The cerebral hemorrhage, doctors said, might have accounted for the weird midnight dance she was seen to perform in the street just before she was found dying.

Investigators are inclined to the belief that she sustained a fractured skull either from a hit-and-run auto or in a fall down the basement stairs of her apartment.

The inquest begun today into her death will be resumed on November 15 with her husband, Richard W. Nichols, as the principal witness.

Catholics Observe All Saints' Day

Catholics throughout the world today observed All Saints' Day, a holy day of obligation. Masses were held in churches throughout the diocese.

For those unable to attend morning masses in their own parishes, noon masses were celebrated at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, St. James' church, Harrison avenue, St. Mary's and St. Stephen's churches in the North End; Holy Trinity church, South End, and St. Joseph's church, West End.

ALYS STEVENSON

Test 'Alibi Diary' in Theft Trial

A "diary alibi" given by his girl friend in behalf of John A. Hendrick, Jr., 19, of Ashford street, Allston, today was submitted to chemical ink analysis in the trial of Hendrick on charges of robbery.

Report of the entries made by the girl, Alys Stevenson, 18, also of Ashford street, will be submitted to Judge Daniel A. Rollins on November 4 in Brookline court.

According to the "diary alibi," Hendrick could not have been the one who robbed Chauncey F. English of Winthrop road, Brookline, of his automobile and $30 on October 9.

After the girl tearfully had offered her diary entry for that date she fainted in court.

55-Day Store Strike Ended

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1 (INS).—It ended as signalizing a new era of industrial peace and fairness in employer-employee relationship, the last major labor dispute in San Francisco was settled today.

Ending 55 days of business paralysis, striking A. F. L. employees of 35 department stores voted to accept a peace plan by the narrow margin of 1968 to 1914.

A compromise seniority clause, major point at issue, was included in the agreement and basic wages were raised from $15 to $20. Vacation schedules were increased.

However, the contract does not provide for the "union store." No closed shop provision was made, but the employers agreed to recognize the AFL Retail Department Store Employees Union as sole collective bargaining agent with the exception of minor classifications of employees.

Announcement of the union's acceptance was followed by a statement from the Retailers' Council that it also approved the settlement.

Resumption of normal conditions in department stores today will bring to San Francisco a condition of industrial peace and stability not experienced by the city for many years.

A week ago last Saturday another critical dispute, in which a wandering "hot box car" was shunted from warehouse to warehouse until 137 San Francisco Bay region distribution points were closed, was settled. Peace in this key industry was assured for three years by the agreement.

Previously the waterfront, which is San Francisco's danger point, also achieved peaceful solution of disputes when contracts with waterfront unions were arranged.

Probe Accident In Navy Ship

Naval Intelligence officers arrived at Fore River shipyard today to investigate possibility of sabotage in an accident aboard the U. S. Wasp, new $20,737,000 aircraft carrier.

Five men narrowly escaped death when the arm of a derrick slipped and a four-ton motor crashed to the flying deck.

The motor was ruined. A large hole was ripped in the deck. There have been three mysterious "accidents" aboard ships built at Fore River in the last few years.

2 Men Found Dead From Gas, Woman Dying

FITCHBURG, Nov. 1.—Two men were found dead and a woman close to death in a gas-filled apartment in Main street, in the Upper Common section of this city, today.

The dead were Edward Gauvin, retired city employe, and his brother, Dominic, with whom he made his home.

Mrs. Dominic Gauvin's name is on the danger list at Burbank Hospital suffering from inhalation of gas.

The tragedy was discovered by Henry E. Brennan of Pine street, Leominster, an insurance collector, when he called at the Gauvin home for a policy payment.

Brennan reported he smelled gas when he approached the front door. He entered, unlocked door and found Edward dead in a chair in the living room, Dominic dead in a chair in the kitchen and Mrs. Gauvin unconscious on the kitchen floor.

Brennan told authorities there were five gas jets open on the combination gas and coal range.

Police worked over Mrs. Gauvin for almost an hour with a pulmonary before they were able to remove her to the hospital.

Medical Examiner Cornelius E. Geary viewed the bodies and expressed the belief the two men had been dead all night.

Mrs. Lawlor Finds Joy in Her Divorce

"I feel better now than I've felt for a long, long time."

Thus did Mrs. Mary Alice Bailey Lawlor of Weston today express her happiness at the divorce she won from John K. Lawlor, Lexington salesman, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

News of the decree in her favor was brought to the attractive young matron at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bailey of Webster road, Weston.

"It's wonderful," she cried, as the finding of the court was read to her. "This verdict vindicates me."

Mrs. Lawlor spent her first day of marital "freedom" with her three-year-old daughter, Jane, whose custody she won under the court's decision.

"I'm going into town tomorrow," Mrs. Lawlor continued, "and buy a wardrobe of new clothes for little Jane and myself."

"I feel as if I had a new lease of life with all those divorce court accusations against me buried forever."

Dies Demands 'Fair' Hearing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—Chairman Martin Dies of the House committee investigating un-American activities today demanded that the Mutual Broadcasting System give time to a "fair and reputable" newspaper man to reply to a broadcast attack on the committee by Paul Y. Anderson, Washington correspondent.

Anderson, under sponsorship of the Democratic national committee, and Dies, speaking for the committee he heads, split a half-hour of the network's time last night arguing the merits and demerits of the inquiry.

DEMANDS REPLY
"Since the Democratic national committee chose Anderson as the type of liberal they favor, I am writing the Mutual Broadcasting System today asking that I be permitted to name a fair and reputable correspondent from the dozen or so who have been covering our hearings regularly to give the country a fair, impartial and accurate picture," Dies said.

Anderson charged the Dies investigation was "slipshod" and "unfairly unfair," and that an attack before the committee upon Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, Democratic nominee for re-election, was "deliberately staged."

He asserted that Dies "has been seeing a lot of things lately which were not visible to other people," and that "he should go back to Texas for a well-earned rest."

'REFUSED TO AID'

Dies Charges Air 'Control'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—Rep. Martin Dies (D-Tex.), whose tiff with the administration over the activities of the House un-American activities investigating committee went on the air last night, declared he received a flood of telegrams from throughout the country that local stations on the Mutual system were not carrying his speech.

"Even the word has been passed out over the country that the matter has got to be made a local affair," Dies said. "It demonstrates that something has got to be done about radio."

"At present the freedom of radio is under control of the party in power, something must be done to take radio from the control of party politics," Dies here explained that the broadcasting by Dies and Paul Y. Anderson, St. Louis newspaperman, had been offered to 104 stations on the chain, but that some had other programs previously scheduled.

had refused to aid the committee, though agents of various departments had been assigned to aid other congressional committees.

"If the President is displeased with the way in which the investigation has been conducted," Dies asserted, "why hasn't he or his departmental heads furnished us with investigators, lawyers and clerical assistance?"

"We have only scratched the surface, and what we have already proved is merely a preface to what we can prove if we are given a fair and decent opportunity."

Dies cited letters from Attorney General Cummings and J. Edgar Hoover refusing aid to the committee, and a letter from the President transmitting letters from Cummings and WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, replying to Dies' requests, and refusing aid. Offer of the aid of two men, one paid by WPA and assigned to the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee, was made, Dies declared, but refused.

"We did not accept this Greek gift," Dies declared, "because we had good reasons to believe that these two men were assigned to the committee to sabotage our investigation."

Dies assailed both Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of Labor Perkins, charging they took part in a "crude and ridiculous distortion" of testimony taken before the committee in an effort to discredit the investigation.

"This campaign," he declared, "was begun by certain radical writers whose sympathies for Soviet Russia are matters of common knowledge in Washington."

"Immediately, and as if by pre-arrangement," he said, "Secretary Perkins and Secretary Ickes took prominent parts in this campaign by the repetition of a crude and ridiculous distortion of the testimony of one of the numerous witnesses who appeared before us."

"I am a Democrat—I have been loyal to my party even when I had grave misgivings. But there are some things I place above partisanship and political expediency."

"There are some things that are more precious to me than the office of congressman, or the approving smiles and blessings of the most powerful administration in history."

"Among these things are the preservation of Americanism and the protection of this country against the infiltration of alien influences and philosophies which threaten to undermine the pillars of the republic."

British Speed Anglo-Italian Accord Plan

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today that he intended to bring the Anglo-Italian accord of April 18 into force "as soon as possible."

He said he would offer a motion for debate tomorrow to the effect that "this House welcomes the intention of his majesty's government to bring the Anglo-Italian agreement into force."

The prime minister spoke to the House as it assembled for a four-day session expected to be devoted largely to debate on the government's rearmament, civilian defense, and foreign policies.

The Anglo-Italian pact, signed at Rome the day before Easter, has been held in abeyance because of failure to achieve a "settlement" in connection with the Spanish civil war.

Odds on Hitler In Case of War

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Germany has committed three major acts of aggression in violation of treaty obligations within the last two years, and in each case she acted with odds against her so overwhelmingly that in case of war she would certainly have been defeated.

She now has the odds with her for the first time.

After each former aggression Germany solemnly swore she was now satisfied, had no more territorial claims.

Once more Hitler has publicly declared he has no more territorial claims in Europe. But now Germany could win a war. Why?

Primarily, because Hitler has covered Europe. Success grows upon success, and Hitler's successes now come more and more rapidly.

The Saar question was settled in 1933 he told the Reichstag "the German people have no thought of invading any country."

The Saar question was settled to Hitler's satisfaction and in March, 1938, violating Locarno, Germany marched into the Rhineland.

"Germany neither intends nor wishes to interfere in the internal affairs of Austria, to annex Austria or to conclude an Anschluss," Hitler told the Reichstag in 1935.

In March, 1936, he repeated: "We have no territorial demands to make in Europe," and as late as February, 1938, he reaffirmed his recognition of Austrian sovereignty.

Thereupon Germany marched into Austria in March, 1938, again at a moment when the general staff advised Hitler they would lose if war began.

From the moment the first German army boot struck Czech soil the entire European set-up changed violently.

Russia is now out as a threat to Germany. Her pact with Czechoslovakia is annulled. Her pact with France is a dead letter.

Court Voids Hall's Charges

he came into the switchboard room, took Mrs. Hall's handbag from the top of the board and hit her on the side of the face with it.

Q—Did you ever hear Mr. Hall threaten Mrs. Hall? A—Yes.

Q—What did he say? A—He said, "You come back to me or I'll get you!"

Q—Anything else? A—One night I was walking through the casino, near the switchboard room. I saw a form in the darkness there. I screamed.

HE WOULDN'T GO

Q—Who was there in the dark?

A—Mr. Hall.

Q—What did Mrs. Hall do? A—She told him to leave the hotel, to stop bothering me.

Q—What did he do? A—He wouldn't leave. He sat down in the lobby.

Q—Did Mrs. Hall later leave the company of the hotel? A—Yes.

Q—Why? A—We had to tell her it didn't look well for Mr. Hall to be coming there and making a disturbance. It didn't look well in front of guests. So she left.

Mrs. Hall's stepson, who was reprimanded by Judge Mahoney, had just testified that he saw Mrs. Hall combing her hair in Dr. Cole's Swampscott home after she and the doctor had allegedly been there together half an hour with the lights out.

An earlier witness was a Boston housewife who told of playing amateur detective and following Mrs. Hall to an alleged rendezvous with Dr. Cole.

Questioned by Attorney John J.

Curran, counsel for Hall, the witness, Mrs. Anna Mae Gadden of Medford street, testified:

"I first saw Dr. Cole and Mrs. Hall together July 3, 1938.

"That day I was eating in a Back Bay restaurant with a woman friend, Miss Thompson.

"At another table was Mr. Hall with Mrs. Hall. I had known Mr. Hall more than 20 years.

"Before my friend and I finished our meal, Mr. Hall passed Miss Thompson a note and she handed it to me.

"I don't remember the exact wording of the note, but it said, in substance, that Mrs. Hall was going to leave the restaurant and take a taxi and Mr. Hall wanted my friend and I to follow her and see where she went.

DOCTOR'S CAR WAITED

"We did as Mr. Hall asked.

"Mrs. Hall's taxi, with mine following, went to Gloucester and Reylston streets.

"There an automobile with a doctor's green cross on the registration plate was waiting.

"The man at the wheel was Dr. Cole.

"Mrs. Hall dismissed her taxi and went over and got in the auto with the doctor.

"We tried to follow the doctor's car, but lost it in traffic."

Another witness today was a real detective, William A. Scanlon of Quincy.

Scanlon told of seeing Mrs. Hall and Dr. Cole leave the latter's Swampscott office on Saturday, March 5, 1938.

Next time he saw Mrs. Hall and the doctor together was at Rye Beach, N. H., on June 20 of this year.

That time, according to his testimony, he and Hall drove to Rye Beach and kept an all-night vigil outside a cottage which he identified as belonging to Dr. Cole.

"We hung around all night, then at 8 o'clock in the morning, we saw Mrs. Hall and Dr. Cole leave the cottage together."

"Daniel Hinchler, a Watertown engraver, told of an occasion when he said he and Hall followed Mrs. Hall and Dr. Cole from Swampscott to East Boston and then to Winthrop.

"MRS. HALL THERE"

Q—Did you ever see Mrs. Hall and Dr. Cole together? A—Yes, on December 6.

Q—Where? A—At Swampscott.

Q—Kindly tell the court what happened? A—I drove Mr. Hall down to Swampscott in my car. He pointed out a house which he said was Dr. Cole's.

Q—In on with your story? A—

Q—What did you observe? A—

Q—Dr. Cole came out with Mrs. Hall and a third person, a man.

Q—What happened then? A—

They drove to a restaurant. We stopped in the vicinity and waited. Later they came out and drove to East Boston. We followed.

In East Boston, Dr. Cole stepped his car and the third person, the man, got out at a bus terminal.

We and Mrs. Hall drove to Winthrop. Mrs. Hall followed, but Dr. Cole and Mrs. Hall noticed we were trailing them.

Q—What was Mrs. Hall's position in Dr. Cole's automobile? A—At first she was sitting in the front seat, like any passenger.

Q—Did she stay in that position? A—No.

Q—Where did she move to? A—I couldn't see. She just disappeared. She was out of sight.

HALL ON RUNNING BOARD

Q—Did she reappear? A—Yes, she was sitting up in the seat again, a little later.

Q—Was there a stop made in Winthrop? A—Yes, Dr. Cole stopped at a gasoline station. I pulled up nearby and stopped.

too. Mr. Hall got out of my car and ran over to Dr. Cole's car. The windows were open.

Mr. Hall jumped on the running board and clung to the window upright.

Q—What happened next? A—Dr. Cole started to drive off.

Q—With Mr. Hall still on the running board? A—Yes.

Q—Was there an accident? A—

—Yes, Dr. Cole's car hit a lamp-post and a mailbox. It was very slippery. When I tried to follow, I ran past Dr. Cole's car. By the time I could turn around and come back, Dr. Cole's car had driven off.

WE SAY OLD QUAKER BEST WAY TO SAVE MONEY ON WHISKEY

"A very nice aroma, a flavor as good as the best!" remarks T. B. Wilson, Bruggist, to Investigator Anderson, after trying Old Quaker.

960 Out of 1,000 Men—in Dramatic Survey—Confirm Our Belief that Old Quaker—Now 3 Years Old—is an Amazing Bargain at This Price!

● You'll welcome this news! You can save money on whiskey without cutting corners on quality. Why do we say so? Because the judgment of 960 out of 1,000 men is that Old Quaker—now 3 years old—is a mild, ripe, full-bodied whiskey. But—we call your attention to the fact that Old Quaker 3-year-old sells at an amazing low price.

We actually sought out 1,000 men—from 22 states—asked them to try Old Quaker and give us their unbiased opinion. "Smell it!", we said. "Taste it! Swallow a drink of it! Then, tell us what you think!"

Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying. Yet 960 praised its smoothness, mellowness, mildness. So again, we say:—Look at Old Quaker's rock-bottom price.

What This Means To You

If these 960 out of 1,000 men are right, then Old Quaker has got something you want! It's got fine quality at a low price! Make this simple trial yourself! Convince yourself that Old Quaker is good news for thrifty drinkers!

"It's mild—that's what I like about it," says Dan J. Negus, Atlanta Hotel Man, of Old Quaker.

How Celluloid Foiled Escape

and said nothing and some of them went pale.

Some of them blanched white as a ghost when they saw Cline carried out.

HARVEY BAILEY GRINS

He wasn't a pretty sight, with his head caved in and his face covered with sweat and his hand opening and shutting in a feeble kind of involuntary motion around his neck.

But Bailey—the same Harvey Bailey who had had himself transferred out of there and had had himself transferred back again—didn't go white.

He just looked on and grinned. It was a mysterious kind of grin—the same grin that he wore every time I looked at him.

He kept grinning even when Pettijohn came out, and made the rest of them whistle. Pettijohn was about as bloody as Cline, and was carrying a pile of coveralls—his coveralls—that were sopping wet.

We thought that just about put Pettijohn's neck in the rope—which shows you how wrong circumstantial evidences can be.

It was proved, to the satisfaction of the investigators, that Pettijohn had run to Cline's aid, and had rolled up his coveralls to make a pillow for Cline's smashed head, and had sat on the floor with Cline's head in his lap, until outside help arrived.

"THE SHOW'S OVER"

You'll understand how bad Cline looked when I tell you that the original plan called for the cons to take Cline's uniform and wear it to make things easier on the roof. After they got through beating on Cline, the uniform wasn't fit to be used.

We saw them carry Cline out and we saw them take Whitey off the wire, and then the guards told us:

"The show's over. Change your clothes and line up to go in. They searched us back to the cell-house, about an hour and a half ahead of regular schedule and they weren't taking any chances.

Every guard and free man on the island was on the walls, and catwalks and roofs, with every kind of hose you ever heard of—shotguns and machine guns and gas guns and rifles and automatics.

They ordered us into our cells, and the doors pounded shut and the bell rang for us to stand at attention and they counted us. Then they counted us again.

Things quieted down by lockup time, and stayed quiet until about seven. Then we began to hear means that veered off into screams and tapered off into moans again.

That was Limerick dying. He was a long time at it. He didn't get it over with until midnight, just as the guards changed shift.

THAT WAS THE END

For five hours those moans and screams kept tearing at our nerves in the cell house, and when we came to talk it over later, everybody was asking:

"Where did they come from?" If Limerick had been taken to the hospital we couldn't have heard him. Some of us got the idea they had taken him to the morgue, and put him on a slab and let him die there.

The best evidence says that Limerick died in the kitchen receiving room, down in the basement.

It's a cage-like room, designed and built by Roy Gardner, the escape artist, so vegetables can come in and cons can't go out.

Limerick's noises seemed to come from that direction, and I have been told that both he and Franklin were dumped in the receiving room, that Franklin was kept there too, until Limerick died—and then he was taken to the hospital.

I don't know any of that, for a fact, but it's the story every con on the island believes.

So that was the end—except for this trial now going on—of the half-mart caper that was going to send 800 cons home. Cline died and Limerick died and Franklin got hit and Lucas took a dive.

FIGURES DON'T COUNT

Except for Cline it wasn't figured out that way at all. Whitey and Big Sandy and Jimmy were going to take over Stites' tower, rifle, automatic, gas bombs, and ammunition. They were going to burn Stewart down and take his rifle and automatic.

After which they planned to take the hill tower, between the laundry and renovating plant, and which is connected with the model shop roof by a catwalk.

By this time—so the brains had it figured—there would be plenty of guns and ammunition to supply the cons waiting down below. Some were going to jump into a truck that was sitting beside the paint shop, and were going to use this truck to crash the gate.

The others were going to take over the tower that sits on the other side of the laundry, down by the beach.

Once through the gate, they figured, it would have been all over. They would have taken over the families of the warden and his deputy and the guards and the free men.

They would have had the women and children. They could have started bargaining from there. They could have had everything they asked for.

So they figured. But they didn't figure on two thin sheets of celluloid that threw out all their fancy figuring.

(Tomorrow, Reed will continue his thrilling narrative by giving the inside story of the only escape ever made from the supposedly escape-proof prison.)

Battle of Candidates:

Barbs Hurlled In Race for Governor

The Boston Evening American today presents another in a series of articles concerning the aims, ambitions and aspirations of the Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates, James M. Curley and Leverett Saltonstall.

These articles will be published daily for the remainder of the state election campaign.

Mr. Saltonstall is the author of his own statements. The Curley articles are furnished by the Democratic State Committee.

By LEVERETT SALTONSTALL

Massachusetts was honored recently by a visit from the Democratic national chairman, Postmaster-General Farley, and Mr. Farley is a man who will not deny what he has said.

Before the primaries he made the statement that the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in this state would not be worth a five-cent piece to anyone but Governor Hurley.

Mr. Farley studiously avoided mentioning this fact when he spoke at the $100 a plate Democratic dinner. There were a number of other matters to which he avoided reference.

For example, Governor Hurley's personal honesty, his integrity and his character have never been questioned. Why, then, was his Democratic administration repudiated? Let's have the reasons.

I realize that Mr. Farley considers it his duty as national Democratic chairman to attempt to secure the election of every Democratic candidate regardless of whether his personal character and public record justifies his election. DIRECTLY OPPOSITE.

I am certain that many of the Democrats of Massachusetts prefer to follow President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose position is directly opposite to that of Mr. Farley.

The President has frankly admitted that he has often voted for Republican candidates and that the good of the nation transcends party lines.

Democratic voters, men of character, like the Honorable Patrick J. Donohue, believe that honor, decency and the future welfare of Massachusetts come before party. I am proud of their support.

These able and independent men are loyal sons of Massachusetts. These Democrats place the welfare of the state they love above party considerations.

They join with hundreds of thousands of independent and Republican voters in refusing to be swayed from their path by abuse. They know that there is only one issue in this campaign and that is a moral issue. Are we to have honest service in every department of the government, or are we to have a repetition of the disgraceful occurrences of 1934 to 1937?

The eyes of the nation are upon Massachusetts. My election as governor will not be a personal victory. It will be a victory for decency.

My election will announce to the entire United States that this Commonwealth of ours demands honest men as candidates for public office and that we still have faith in Massachusetts.

I want the WPA workers to know that, under my administration as governor, they will receive every protection and safeguard of the law. I will not stand for their being made tools of the politicians. Federal relief is a necessity.

The funds of the Commonwealth shall be treated as trust funds to be used for the benefit of the people, whose money it is, and for their benefit alone. Contractors will be compelled to make honest bids and truck owners will be forced to give honest service.

By the DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE

The average citizen properly thinks that both major candidates for governor are laying too great emphasis on their labor records. One of these records is so good that it needs no defense and the other is so bad it cannot be defended.

Everybody knows that James M. Curley has fought for labor all his life. The liberal legislation enacted in 1935 and 1936 is exactly the kind that he would be expected to put on the statute books if he had the opportunity to do so.

He had that opportunity when he was governor, and seized it eagerly and promptly.

No one, of course, will believe that all the Governor has to do with legislation is to sign bills after they are passed; we are too familiar with President D. Roosevelt's success in obtaining from Congress the legislation he desires.

A determined and resourceful governor, such as James M. Curley, can and does exert great influence upon the Legislature.

Mr. Saltonstall is quite well aware of that fact. Otherwise he could not, in honesty, promise additional liberal legislation in 1939 and 1940 if he should be elected governor.

SOMETHING WRONG

He has promised such legislation, promised it in the same breath in which he declared that James M. Curley did not, and could not, bring about the passage of a single bill in 1935 and 1936.

There is something wrong either with his promise or his declaration. Both cannot be true.

Almost everybody knows Leverett Saltonstall's background and record. They know that while a member of the Legislature he never voted for any bill favorable to labor; he always voted against such bills.

It is not likely, no matter what he may now say, that he changed from anti-labor to pro-labor at the very hour he was elected Speaker of the House.

His belated claim of credit for the legislation enacted under Governor Curley doesn't ring true. It looks like a case of political expediency rather than sincere conviction.

To the extent that labor and social security legislation enacted under Governor Curley is an issue in this campaign, we are convinced that it has already been decided in the minds of the voters.

The Republican leadership would have been wise to concede the labor vote to Mr. Curley and have its candidate base his claim to consideration on other grounds.

One of Mr. Saltonstall's ardent sponsors has attributed to him both a South Boston face and a South Boston heart. That characterization is such a transparent counterfeit that it will deceive no one.

South Boston certainly will not accept it. Republican leaders will have to mint a better coin than that if they expect it to be accepted as genuine.

Take Politics Out of Relief

Citizens, before you vote, ask these questions of all candidates for Congress:

"Do you stand for the principle that there must be no political control or influence in the handling of relief funds, pump-priming money, agricultural benefit money or social security money?"

"Do you favor the principle of having all such public expenditures supervised by a non-partisan, non-political board employing civil service personnel?"

"Do you pledge yourself to work for the proper measures to put these principles into practical operation?"

Dewey Spikes Story He'll Run for President in '40

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 1 (INS)—Republican nominee Thomas E. Dewey removed himself from the 1940 Presidential picture today by telling reporters that if elected governor of New York next Tuesday he will serve a full four-year term.

Dewey, who gained fame as a "racket busting" prosecutor, is now district attorney of New York County.

Reinforced, when his campaign train rolled into Buffalo, that he had "led a Syracuse audience last night that 'for eight years I have been a prosecutor, and now the main part of my job is done,' he was asked whether he meant that if elected he would stay in Albany. "Certainly," replied Dewey.

ELSIE ROBINSON, writes from the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems regularly in the Boston American.

Dietrich will say yes, Lathrop Mender will remake "Dr. Katherine of St. Petersburg," a Russian picture he recently bought. Marlene, Lathrop says, would be perfect for the part. Patricia Tipton, Betty Davis' sister, is in "Dark Victory" as a friend who is discovered she was the only one who told her the truth. Two sisters who are in the picture are, Lathrop says, as in "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Sign of the Cross."

Wage-Hour Law Queries Answered

The Wages and Hours Bureau of the Boston Evening American answers queries on the new law. Employers and employees should address queries to The Wages and Hours Editor, Boston Evening American, Winthrop square. QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED COVERING QUERIES MOST ASKED IN A SINGLE DAY. The only difference is occupational in most instances.

Q—Asked by several large employers.

A—Considers the long range economic effects of the law. Will there be domination of low rate workers by machinery? It is assumed such workers are doing by hand at a lower rate what might be accomplished more efficiently and more cheaply by machinery.

A—The answer depends on several factors. Have you, Mr. Employer, machines available for the kind of work in question? Can you obtain such machinery quickly IN ORDER TO OFFSET THE RISE IN WAGE RATES?

It is capital available to buy new machinery? And last, but not least, will your market absorb increased production caused by your new machinery?

Q—Please define the meaning of "wage" as interpreted by the new law.

A—Wage, according to Administrator Elmer Andrews, means reasonable cost (as determined by him) to the employer of furnishing such employee with board, lodging or other facilities, "if such board, lodging, or other facilities are customarily furnished by such employer to his employees."

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

DON LEFTY "EL GOOFY" GOMEZ and his dark-eyed wife, June O'Dea, must have kissed and made up . . . The Castilian pride of the Yankees and the erstwhile Broadway dancer who sued him for a separation have been visiting together in the house which Lefty built in Lexington . . . After the World Series, in which Lefty broke a record as well as getting a hit, the couple started off together for Canada, your correspondent is told by an "authentic source" . . . Their visit to Lexington was by nature of a New England detour to New York, where they are due any minute.

GEORGE HOLLAND

Another has been in the vicinity was the crumbly, blue-rimmed catcher of the Yankees, and a third, generally with up to the neck in city's reputation for culture as the only member of the Red Sox who can string available words and not sound like a radio-announcer . . .

Joe came to town for the Harvard-Princeton game . . . He stayed over in the Harvard Hotel, which he managed in New York . . . At the Harvard Hotel, after the game, Mass. who is a Princeton graduate, was seen in the Harvard Hotel, making a performance . . .

He was bemoaning also the fact that Eva Le Gallienne in Eddie Devog's production of "Madame Capet" had a short life on Broadway . . . Joe must have a good connection in Times Square, because he—with a shake of his leonine head—confided that "Madame Capet" cost producer Dowling $60,000.

While we were chatting, and the autograph-hunters were busy for a few minutes up in the table and wardrobe: "I hope the Red Sox get a couple of pitchers . . ."

"That's the tenth time tonight I've heard that one," Joe said. "I answer them, too. I say: 'So do I!'"

There are rumblings around Beacon Hill about the repudiation by a defeated candidate in the Democratic gubernatorial primaries of the man who was "the contact" for the Fall River, New Bedford and Martha's Vineyard section . . . The "contact man" promised that bills totaling $100,000 would be paid . . . But the fellow with the bills is getting no action at all.

Governor Hurley's salary as a banker will be more than his wages as governor . . . It has been set at $15,000 a year . . .

Once Over Lightly

Halloween was more profitable than an ordinary Monday in the night clubs . . . Sell-outs were noted uptown at the Casa Manana, (where the Stanley Twins have moved from the Towne Club), and at the Trocadero . . . The Mayfair had the ropes out early, and so did the Latin Quarter of the Towne Club . . . The Mayfair will hold over the Boston American Basket Fund winning jittersbugs for at least another week, and possibly two . . .

And the club was ducking last night for the services of Ethel Shultz to sing to the strains of Runny Weeks' music at the opening of a week from tomorrow . . .

George (Gibson) Shultz's spouse, once held a contract for the vocalizing services of his wife. But that is probably something of the happy past . . .

The Bradford Penthouse catered to Halloween trade with a brand new revue, and The Latin Quarter inserted another adagio quartet—Mia Miles and Company—into its program, which already holds a good adagio foursome . . . The newcomers dress and dance like Mexican, although there is a rumor they are Latin . . . Gwyn Marlowe, who dances on her toes while expertly manipulating a set of fans, is a hit at the Latin Quarter . . .

Her work last night was appraised by Ann Corio, who was at a ringside table with her husband, Emmett Callahan, and Mr. and Mrs. Al Somerby . . . In her stint at the Old Howard, Miss Corio danced first around with fans, but she can qualify as an expert in figure dancing . . . She thought Miss Marlowe was all right . . .

At the Latin Quarter also were Mr. and Mrs. Newman Drake, of Watertown . . . Newman is one of the cake family . . . He and the missus were observing their 13th wedding anniversary . . .

The Stage Door (formerly the San Sassa) opened last night to a pack-jammed house. Don Humbert and his orchestra is the chief attraction, and Dorothy Arnold, who made a hit with Jan Garber's band, is singing with the Humberts . . .

Don sang "So Help Me" at the opening in tribute to its writer, popular Eddie De Lange, who was present with the Famous Four—manager, Eddie Jacobs, and Marnie and Joe Shrimman, the band-leaders . . .

De Lange will open next Monday at Jack White's new Bandbox in Spring street, New York . . . He has written two new songs, "This Is Madness," and "Deep in a Dream." "In My Solitude" was partly his, if you remember . . .

Day at Nursery

Busy But It's Fun!

Games Keep 'Em Amused

Crackers and Milk! Oh, Boy!

Story Time! Gather Round!

Fun and food abound at the Day Nursery of the Salvation Army at Staniford st. where Maj. Or. Kelder directs the day's program. A typical day at nursery is depicted above, showing the youngsters petting cookies and milk, reading and playing games.

London Looking Strange

Drawing published in 1906 by Alvin Corcoran illustrates part of H. G. Wells' fantasy, "War of Worlds," which was dramatized on radio by Orson Welles and caused panic over nation. Scene depicts Londoners examining strange machines of invaders from Mars.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

STRANGE, how one can repeat a phrase countless times yet never discover its real meaning. I'm thinking, just now, of the attitudes that portion of Christ's Sermon on the Mount which the youngsters of my generation knew as well as we knew our mothers' lullaby.

"Blessed are the poor... blessed are they that mourn... sitting in sackcloth, Sunday morning, tears torn dingy, curls bobbing, freshly scrubbed ears ablaze, we pined that lovely litany, until it seemed a part of our young flesh. Yet only yesterday, 40 long years since, did I come to realize what one of those Beatitudes really meant."

"Blessed are the poor in heart for they shall see God..." how often I'd said those words, yet never once had I connected them with our common human need. Noble words, but left one unmoved.

FOR HOW COULD BEING "PURE IN HEART" HELP A DESPERATE MAN IN A WORLD SHOT THROUGH WITH FOULNESS AND DISHONESTY, SUSPICION AND SPITE?

A beautiful theory

SO TOWN the years I went, twisting those blessed words to suit my own warped vision. Until the other day—in one of those "stranger than fiction" incidents—I learned their true meaning.

My friend, that best loved of all journalistic executives, Joseph V. Connolly, general manager of the Boston Evening American, was to speak at the National Eucharistic Congress in New Orleans.

Silence—only the throb of the great presses pounding along the waiting air. Then suddenly with the swift leap and lunge of a fighter, "J. V." was on the air, calling upon an indifferent nation to awake, warning an endangered people to prepare.

Word by word, the blows shot home. Then suddenly, above the dark picture, the long years' old words came. The same, yet so different!

"BLESSED ARE THE PURE IN HEART—" Blessed indeed! But where I asked myself, is there place or reward for purity in this soiled and shameful world? But, even as I asked the answer came.

"BLESSED ARE THE PURE IN HEART: FOR THEY SHALL SEE GOD." IN THEIR FELLOW MEN. So THAT was what it meant! And all these years I had missed it!

"FOR THEY SHALL SEE GOD." Not in some far-off Heaven, some vague eternity... but here and now, wherever they looked, in the faces of their fellow men, even in their distorted acts. One found what one sought. I had long known that; but never before had I applied it to this promise. But now I understood. If a man's heart was filled with the expectation of hate, he found the hate he expected... the villain he expected... the unfairness and cruelty. BUT IF HIS HEART WAS PURE WITH LOVE AND CHARITY... HE FOUND THAT WHICH HE, HIMSELF, FELT... HE FOUND GOD.

THINK LOVE AND YOU WILL FIND IT. CHOOSE BEAUTY FOR YOURSELF AND YOU WILL SEE IT IN OTHERS. For there is God in everyone—however debased the clay in which He abides. But only those who have chosen Him for themselves can recognize Him in the scarred, stained faces of their fellow men!

LOSE A WIG OR GLASS EYE? THEN SEE THIS YOUNG WOMAN
Miss Virginia Snodgrass, Hotel Statter Lost and Found Department Custodian

Girl About Town by Marjorie McBride

ONCE THEY FOUND a watch in a washroom and the owner in Shanghai. That's a sample of the way Hotel Statter's lost and found department works.

The amazing array of strayed and discarded belongings in the Statter's archives is almost unbelievable. At present there's a big bass drum, golf-club in a bowl, a blonde wig, one glass eye and dozens of other miscellaneous articles.

Miss Virginia Snodgrass is mistress of this strange department, and her job is to sort through the things left behind as they are turned in by chambermaids and other hotel employees.

The management doesn't wait for a departed guest to report what he's forgotten to pack. If anything is found the guest is notified through his registration and the article, even if it's a shoe, is forwarded to him.

Men leave more things behind than women guests, Miss Snodgrass thinks. They frequently forget their pajamas and leave them hanging in the closet. Women are forever losing their right-hand glove, and there's no end of them turned in to the department.

Wallets and expensive jewelry seldom worry Miss Snodgrass. Guests are more inclined to lose things of small intrinsic value, but frequently of sentimental value. Lodge pins turn up constantly in her collection.

All unclaimed articles are held for a specific time and finally turned over to whichever employee found them.

OBSERVING onion skins, corn husks and a few other things, Town Crier Amos Kubick of Provincetown has decided this is going to be a mild winter. Not as open as last winter, but mild. Kubick has been the amateur forecaster of the Cape for years and says he has never been wrong.

When the winter is going to be a bitter one, he says, onion skins grow abnormally thick and corn husks cling to the stalks.

ADD ADVERTISING blimps that leave you wondering: Sign in a downtown store, heralding a sale of dresses—"EVERY GOWN IS ILLUMINATING."

"BUY MASSACHUSETTS" when purchasing that Thanksgiving turkey. The State Department of Agriculture is planning a campaign to see that you do. Their argument is that other States buy native, so why not this one?

New York Cavalcade by Louis Sobol

PROTHY TRIFLES. Paunchy, quiver-lipped Robert Morley's bee-eater expression gives him the appearance of age which is not his. He hasn't touched 30... One word to describe Raymond Massey furrow... Among the more retiring but prolific songsmiths of town is James Kendis who wrote If I Had My Way, Nathan, For What Are You Waiting?, Nathan, Sympathy, On the Banks of the Old Mill Stream, Keep on Smiling, etc. Some columns ago, I credited Harry Carroll with For Ever, Blowing Bubbles only to learn that this, too, is a Kendis creation... Carroll's famed song was I'm Always Chasing Rainbows...

SYMPATHY FOR THE LEFT-BEHINDS on Broadway whose coffee and cakes vanished when vaudeville dwindled, evaporates when they make their occasional appearance at benefits or celebrity nights... The truth is—and the pity too—that with the passing years they have not changed their unaltered routines... One fellow, a top-notch in his day, has repeated the same gags, word for word, with the same gestures, every time I have heard him.

SIGN OF AGE. I am wearying of amulet-dresses chanted in our night spots. Height of opulence—the dog-house for Marc Lachman's pup was designed by Norman El Golden. Vague in the rumor yet fascinating that the sombre Tombs, if certain promoters' plans are successful, will be converted into a museum, with wax images of notorious prisoners... I have never seen Channing Pollock face-to-face... Girl with the hauntingst look in her eyes—Lina Basquette... Advance rumblings point to a top spot in the nation's song-roster for Cole Porter's new tune: Get Out of Town... And none sings it so well as thin-faced, stout-voiced Eddie Davis... Miracle—the last rose of Summer dropped only yesterday—sturdy survivor through Autumn's blasts on our bush on the porch... It popped out of its bud a week ago during the heat... A freak, according to the florist.

WITH SATISFACTION I note in the newspapers that the Gourmet Society has discovered a favorite eating place of mine—the Golden Horn... There the hip-smackers assembled and plunged into shish-kebab, cheese beeger and paklava... Sunday afternoon snapshot—in Broad Channel in Jamaica Bay, a motor boat with a huge scarecrow—to ward off the seagulls!... Town Dandy Lucius Beebe's book High Iron—stuffed with photographs of trains is at hand... With handsome text savoring of Beebe's jeweled gardenia touch... The fellow, if he isn't careful, will become a town legend...

GLAMOROUS LINA BASQUETTE
"Girl With the Hauntingst Look in Her Eyes"

THERE WAS A small tempest of embarrassed confusion the other night at the Colony Restaurant—the corner table reserved for the William K. Vanderbilts for almost 11 years was occupied by a middle-aged couple with no Social Register listing... There was much whispering among the regulars, you bet.

FORD'S PLAN

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—You know, all the trouble you have getting into a package of chewing gum, or cigarettes through the dispensing machine? You can thank the industry for this. They've won the world in cigarettes and created a new industry. With Ford's plan, they've won the business of putting automobiles.

As we are about to see another brand new machine of unbelievable complexity, you can be sure there will be no further plans to make cigarettes. The device will be the last in the line before the present danger. They are planning an immense industrial plant to produce fuel. When that plant is completed, and through that plant, it will be right.

The possibilities of a development of this kind are unpredictable. It would be some invention to solve the problem of the mechanical or chemical preparation of a fuel and other so-called "cheap" fuels. We could restore our old iron industry and relieve ourselves of dependence on India and the British Isles for plate and tur-

MY LEFT is a rather overemphasized particular theory. It is to suggest that Pierre duPont take a leaf out of the book of Henry Ford. Mr. Ford's idea is to put our economy into better balance by making agriculture serve industry more directly. He proposes this in two ways.

First, he wants the products of our farms to be used to make and make improvements in our roads as well as in our automobiles.

And he wants to decentralize our industry, putting factories in rural areas and see that industrial workers are settled on small farms where they can produce more of the raw food fuel and shelter and also have a direct personal farm employment when the factories slow down.

I think Mr. Ford has something there. He is working it out continuously in an experimental way. But what an opportunity this is for Mr. duPont to put it into mass production.

Pierre duPont has come in for a lot of Third New Deal ribbing as an economic royalist. To me it has always seemed a shame. Anybody who knows him will tell you he is a simple, kindly man. Reliable and incredibly shy.

I have always thought he ought to go on the air with a piece he had prepared himself without any "publicity adviser's" assistance and beginning "My name is Pierre duPont." I proceed in his own simple way to describe his aims and his methods. From my knowledge of him and his philosophy, I believe he could change hostile popular opinion in a single speech.

HERE IS A CHANCE to say it in actions rather than words. To my mind and partly through duPont activities, Delaware is one of the best balanced States.

If Mr. duPont in building this immense new plant, in possibly an immense new industry, would provide a few acres for each future employee and some equitable housing and equipment plan, he could give Mr. Ford's idea a real work-out. And make all government "settlement" projects so far, look like thirty cents.

Boy Friend Suior Or Sponger?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

If I began with my asking him to Sunday night supper, and then he invited himself to dinner. This seemed all right to me, as wife & very hospitable family. But it's not so new food when he comes to the house after dinner is over he doesn't hesitate to go to the refrigerator and help himself to what is left. None of us would mind this, but he never does any cleaning, not even a 35-cent trash.

It isn't because he is unemployed. He has a very good job and makes about $150 a month. My brother says he is a suiior or a sponger, or a combination of both. The same brother declares the next time he rings the doorbell, he is going to pay him a hand-out and close the door. Do you think this is outrageous on the part of the boy friend?

NEIGHBORHOOD.

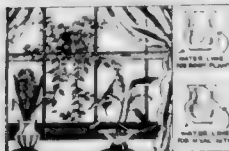

It was a little while ago that I read in a magazine what is back of a few of our best friends. All the paragraphs are in favor of their own perspective. Even if his friend has just as further than advantage, the other would be a something of the purpose.

That when she was a youngster she took Father John's Medicine for colds—so now she gives it to her little girl to increase resistance to colds, and to develop more vigorous health.

Its successful use by millions during the past 84 years is a most convincing proof of value. It must be good!

NO MATTER what the blithesome stylists tell you . . . angora is no sensible thing to wear in a soft-falling snowstorm or if you're going to ski down a slopeful of new-fallen snow . . . not unless you want to look like Mrs. Santa Claus. ## YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Six-Hour Mat Make-Up Is Astounding Loton's Trick

By ARLINE GOLD

IN THESE days of romantic fashions your skin should look as though it were made of moonlight and magnolia petals . . . and a shiny nose or a dull skin will shatter the illusion quite thoroughly.

If you know how, you can keep a make-up that lasts as long as a butterfly wing absolutely intact for six hours with a surprising "dull tone make-up." The second surprise it holds for you is that it is three cosmetics in one . . . a toning lotion so that you need use no astringent, a foundation, and a powder . . . all in one!

Something new this veritably is . . . it smells fresh as a window sill full of rose geraniums . . . it feels cool as dew on your face . . . it dries to a lovely, matt texture . . . and there you are, glamorous for the whole evening ahead!

The dull tone make-up is a thin, thin liquid that comes in several devastating complexion tones . . . so you can look as though you spent your days coiled in ermine and silver for . . . or you can look pinkly bronzed as though you jumped from the Riviera to Tontrina to Nawau whenever the fancy strikes you . . . or you can look "pearly" pale as some famous beauty of the early nineteen hundreds.

Extremely simple to use . . . after cleansing the face, pat the liquid (well shaken, of course) gently into the face. It spreads beautifully. Let it dry. The directions say to "dust off the excess" of the velvet, cameo finish. We suggest that you continue to pat it for a moment after it's dry. This will "set" it even more, and you work up an enchanting glow.

To learn about this complexion creation, a mat six-hour finish that comes with using a combination toning lotion, foundation and powder, all in one, please Arline Gold, Liberty 466, weekdays until five-thirty, or write her at the Boston American, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Plan Your Thanksgiving Feast Now

"The DOCTOR" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Chris Arden Named City Physician

What Has Happened:

It was but just prior to the World War that young Dr. Chris Arden started in private practice. He found it hard enough to gain patronage back at that time, but now, his work, Dave Mortimer, an old nursing doctor who shared Chris' room, would like him for an assistant, but the young doctor prefers to make his own way.

He rents a room and lives with the cheerful Walters family. This is a very comfortable arrangement. Henry Walters and his wife, Mrs. Walters, are very kind to him. He has a daughter, Lily, and a son, Dick, and a nephew, Dick, that is, a nephew of the nephew.

Shortly after Chris has met his son, Beverly Lewis, daughter of the old man in town, whom he has to have a bone removed from the hip. She has a very good idea of what he is like.

Chris has a hard time making ends meet that spring and summer. Then one day he is summoned to the Lewis home to attend a servant. Next morning Chris is surprised to receive an invitation to tea from Beverly. Mrs. Lewis shows Chris and even him a prospective home.

The Lewis family takes a trip abroad. While they are away a typhoid epidemic attacks the town. Most of the victims are workers at Lewis' place, the mill houses of which had neither city water nor sewage. Chris is famous with Lewis for allowing such conditions.

Finally, Henry Walters contracts the fever and dies. Chris realizes that Lily and Kate are now wholly dependent on him. Kate is secretly in love with Chris. Following the death of Dr. Mortimer, head surgeon at the hospital, Chris is appointed to the vacant staff. Returning home from a celebration in his honor, Chris picks up a stray dog which he names "Cecar".

Shortly after Beverly returns from abroad, Chris meets her, but the happiness of the moment is clouded by thoughts of her father's responsibility for the epidemic. He expresses his indignation to Beverly and when she leaves, he knows that, perhaps, the girl is not to blame. Beverly quarrels with her mother for his negligence.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER EIGHT

"Are you are we responsible for the epidemic and the deaths this summer?" Beverly Lewis demanded of her father.

"My dear child," answered, "you couldn't put over a bond issue for a new filtration plant to save your life just now."

"I notice," she said shrewdly, "that you can put over bond issues for everything else you want."

It was then that he rose in his full stature behind the desk and ordered her out of the room.

"You're not rational, and you're being extremely silly," he told her. "Now get out, and don't let me have any more of this."

Two weeks later, the day after the quarrel she walked into the Municipal Building and asked to see the mayor; and half an hour later walked out again, slightly flushed, but the air of one victorious. The mayor, following her into the hall, looked rather less complacent.

"I've got a sneaking idea, Beverly, that you're putting something over on the old man."

"It is I, then, the one who is putting something over on the old man?"

He laughed at that. He had known her for years and knew her better than any other man in town. He was not a man to be fooled.

"Don't get any wrong ideas about him. He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

"He has been pretty good to you. He has been pretty good to you."

DR. ARDEN appeals to the not-too-good Beverly Smith. "I need help," he says. "And I rather think it is your sort of help."

Honor the Mayor himself and no less would like to see Dr. Arden that afternoon at 10 o'clock.

What about? said Chris faithfully.

"He didn't say," said the young man with dignity. "Chris went back to his heart, puzzled but not excited and at three o'clock he found himself in a crowded anteroom in the Municipal Building. It was almost four o'clock before his turn came to enter the Mayor's presence."

Chris, with some gas still to make, stalked into the inner office uncomplacantly and glared down at the man behind the desk, a heavy gentleman with an austere smile and a penetrating eye.

"My name's Arden. I believe you wanted to see me."

The Mayor nodded. "Sit down, Doctor. Yes, I sent for you. The fact is, we need another city physician, and you have been suggested for the job."

Chris looked hard at him across the desk. His mind working quickly, he was analyzing both man and offer. The Mayor he knew was largely a figurehead. The city was run by the local machine, and the head of that machine was Stanton Lewis.

"Where does that offer come from?" he inquired.

"It's not an offer yet, Doctor. I sent for you to talk it over."

"Well, the suggestion then. If it's from Stanton Lewis, I'm sorry of his crowd."

The Mayor cut forward and lost some of his unctuous look. "Look here, Doctor," he said. "I don't know anything about you personally, or just why you're so good. Mr. Lewis, we need another city physician. We pay a hundred dollars a month, and if you don't want to talk about it, there are about a thousand other ways to get men who will. That's a fact, and that's all."

"All I am asking," said Chris still coolly, "is to see the Mayor."

"You can't see the Mayor until you've been through the Mayor's office. It's a good offer, of course."

The Mayor was somewhat mollified. His full name was Barney O'Neill, and being what he was he rather liked a fighter.

Well, I don't mind telling you that. We hear more things here than maybe you think we do, and one of them was the way you carried on during the typhoid epidemic. If you can work like that for nothing, you ought to work like hell for twelve hundred a year."

Chris relaxed. He was not being subsidized by Lewis and his crowd then. He grinned across the desk.

"That's different," he said. "Am I to take it that it is still a suggestion or is it an offer?"

"It's an offer."

"Then I'll take it."

Shortly after Chris left the Mayor's office to find him there alone, and grinning over his cup. He jumped to offer her a chair, but she waived it away.

"I'm not staying," she said. "Did he take it?"

He did. But I wish I knew what it is all about. Beverly, I can tell you this. There's the devil to pay if he knew. He's a suspicious young pup."

"I've twelve years, why, Barney?"

He reached over and put a hand over hers as it lay on the desk. "All I'm asking, Beverly, is don't get interested in him. He's got a hate on your father for some reason or other, and a man's a fool to do a thing like that."

"DON'T FALL IN LOVE!"

She colored. "I like to pay my debts, Barney."

Well, if that's all it is, you've done it. But don't fall in love with him. A girl's a fool to marry a doctor anyhow, out at all hours, sitting by other women's beds, and holding their hands."

She laughed unexpectedly. "You saw him. Does he look like a hand holder?"

"Every man's a hand holder when he gets a chance," said the Mayor grimly.

Chris walked home on a hot first afternoon. He was conscious of a vast relief and of something more of resignation. He went home with a new confidence in his ability to take care of himself.

He went over and put a hand on her shoulder. It was shockingly thin, and shaking now with suppressed sobs.

"I don't do me good, you know my dear. Have some like that. You'll hear something before long."

"It's not Dick," she said astonishedly. "It's Katie."

She became hysterical after that but at last he had the whole story. Katie lately had taken to going out at night and the night before she had gone out to dance and had not come back.

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I didn't know what you'd think."

"Better give me a list of the people she knows and I'll look them up. Where was this last night?"

The last four hours were a nightmare. At first he was more irritated than apprehensive; but as the evening wore on he became increasingly anxious. He found the girl with whom she had gone to the dance hall, but during the evening the two had become acquainted and Katie had disappeared.

Was she drinking?

"She's no drinker, but she'd had one or two, I think."

She was coming to be learned at the hall either. The proprietor suggested his shoulder.

"We have many a hundred girls here in an evening," he said. And we run a decent place. You can see the police."

He left the hall, however, with one glow and ominous enough it sounded. A waiter remembered that a girl answering Katie's description had felt sick and dizzy, and that a middle-aged woman had taken her out to the dressing room. Neither woman nor girl is fat as he knew had come back.

"I NEED HELP."

Chris went out onto the street again and stood there uncertainly. And then he remembered Beverly Smith. She was no angel of light, was Beverly; but she knew her half world well and she might be able to help.

Nevertheless he felt rather absurd when at last he confronted her, and she eyed him quizzically.

"Well, Doctor, what's the matter with you professionally? Or have you brought the cuff links?"

"I've brought the links, Beverly."

"What's the trouble?"

"It's not mine. Somebody else. A girl."

He told her then and she listened carefully.

"I need help, Beverly. And I rather think it's your sort of help."

She looked at him. Her eyes fell as he was, were almost level with his.

"I might telephone around," she said after a moment's hesitation. "After all, you need a good job of me when I looked like a hamburger steak; and treated me like a human being at that. If you're interested in this girl."

"She's my landlady's daughter, that's all."

She left him abruptly, and went up the stairs, the creaking under her weight. It was a half hour before she reappeared, her face as inscrutable as ever.

Harvard and Harlow Swap Mutual Love

PHILADELPHIA'S FOOTBALL COGNESCENTI have been whispering all autumn. These brain-proud people said that Harvard's Dick Harlow would pack his birds' egg collection, dig up his rock garden and resign his dual job as professor of Oology and Swine-skin science.

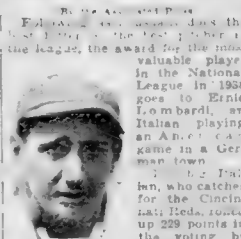

AUSTEN LAKE

Harlow would, they said, accept a similar post for more pay at Penn State, where he was loved, not alone for his football magic, but as a loyal son of the college family. For, said the cognescenti, unlike the conditions at Harvard, 'tweren't no sin at Penn State to whistle shaggy yokels out of their haymows or mineboys from their hoists and exchange a college education for the use of their thick necks and the battering power of their spines.

But Harlow shushed all that. He has issued a post-Princeton game bulletin in which he

War Admiral 3-5 Choice

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Chairman Jervis Spencer of Maryland's state racing commission made the $15,000 match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit a certainty at 3:30 a. m. today with an official ruling the Pimlico track was "fast."

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—The paths of America's two greatest thoroughbreds cross for the first time at ancient Pimlico today when War Admiral and Seabiscuit, descendants of that mighty Man O' War, meet in their on again, off again match race.

Waiting the winner at the end of the race of 1 1/2 miles is a check for $15,000, but far more important is the prestige to be gained through victory.

The two principals in America's first major match race in 14 years, War Admiral from Samuel D. Riddle's famous stable, and Seabiscuit, owned by Charles S. Howard of San Francisco, tonight earned their right to be acclaimed champions of the turf.

EARNED $235,000

Seabiscuit, an $8000 Wheatley Stable colt off in 1930, is bidding for second place among the world's leading money winning horses.

Winner of $125,400 in the last of 31 victories, 12 of which are in the 14 in 89 stakes during four years of campaigning, he has come to tonight the Pimlico race jump ahead of the 11 foaled 1 1/2 years ago a proposition to challenge War Admiral's world record of 1:26 3/4.

Twice the amount of War Admiral's half an opponent of May 6, War was named out of the 100,000 stake purse. The $100,000 Santa Anita handover or he would be far in front now.

War Admiral held no such belief in the money winning record books but neither was he been so heavily campaigned as his West coast rival.

BISCUIT 7 TO 5

The four-year-old Seabiscuit, a year younger than the Admiral, has been under covers on 22 times and has earned $250,000.

An otherwise perfect record for the last two years was spoiled when he finished out of the money in a last-minute Massachusetts handover—the only time in his career in which he failed to earn one of the few 100,000 stakes.

Early today made the Admiral a 3 to 5 choice largely because of his famous early speed. Seabiscuit, known more for his stretch running ability, was quoted at 7 to 5.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP)—Frankie Conn, 198, Lyndhurst, N. J., put down Tony Novello, 127, in a 2 at 1 1/2 mile handover race today at Laurel Park.

Not the least part of next Saturday's football show between Boston College and Indiana University will be the Hoosiers' mighty band of 200 pieces. That band has been treated and cheered wherever the McMullin team has been. The visit to Boston shapes up as a special occasion.

Plans call for a special parade and performance at 10:30 next Saturday morning, on Boston Common, where the colorful band members will march in full array with a full complement of brass instruments and musical instruments.

As a matter of record the Indiana band has come in for all sorts of criticism, as the football team, since its arrival here, through that as a show it more than holds its own with the West Pointers of parade.

PUT ON FEED BAG

After the Common performance, the bandsters will march to Hotel Boston where a special dinner will be awaiting them, and then later to Fenway Park.

From the accounts of Boston College sports the Indiana football team, unsuccessful though the game looks, is one of the most formidable teams to come out of the West in years.

McMillin, after studying the team's record, has brought in a contingent of 100 players, including Coach Sam E. Keller.

Butmark of Indiana line is Guard Jim Logan, Jr. He's 21, weighs 190, and is from Indianapolis.

It is covered enough to keep him warm for the rest of the week. He has told his boss that the Hoosiers have been very good, if not better, than each of the five opponents they faced, and that all five games played by Indiana have hung in the balance into the final whistle.

TIE NEBRASKA

One touchdown was the margin of victory in each of four losing games, the fifth game being a tie against the Nebraska team. Indiana has no basis of comparison as to the strength of his Eagles and the soon-to-arrive visitors.

He holds high respect for the type of play annually put on by Big Ten teams, and he feels that Indiana is the most formidable team on this year's schedule, a fact he has stressed from the day that the game was scheduled.

McMillin will bring his team to Boston in time to get a good workout on Thursday afternoon and another on Friday, thus giving the squad two full days of acclimation before tackling the high-flying Eagles.

JIVILKIAN BACK

Dobie will field his strongest team of the year, one physically intact, and its offensive threat considerably enriched by the return of Ira Jivilkian, the Malden speedster, who has been recuperating for the past two games.

McMillin, Dobie B. C. Alumni Guests

Alvin "Bo" McMillin and Gilmore Dobie, Indiana and B. C. alumni, will be the guests of honor at the dinner given by the Boston College Law School Alumni Association. The luncheon will be held at the Kenmore.

Other speakers at the luncheon will be Gov. Hurley, Rev. P. J. Collins, J. J. Frawley, president of athletics, and Graduate Manager John P. Curley. Daniel J. Gallagher, '28, will be toastmaster.

Brown Plans Air Attack

PROVINCETOWN, R. I., Nov. 1 (AP)—The start of Brown's preparations for the Yale game next Saturday was marked by an intensive session on forward pass defense against expected Bulldog attacks.

The Bruins also worked at some length on their own passing attack. They had a session on blocking and wound up with a snappy signal drill. Tomorrow, the first contact scrimmage in more than a week is on tap.

The Bruins came out of the Tufts game with a fine physical tim with a lone exception.

After the game, senior halfback and quarterback, who suffered a wrenching injury to the knee and he was out two or three weeks. To partially offset Bernstein's loss, John O'Leary, regular right halfback, who has been idle since the game a week ago with R. I. State, was in uniform today.

Shucco Tells of Tony's Close-Up
English Boxing Of War Scare

By JACK CONWAY

TONY SHUCCO looked as if he were ready to step in and fight any of the top flight heavyweights as he dropped into this office following his ring campaign in England, Ireland and in Germany. The North End heavyweight told me he weighed 181 pounds, and I do not believe he could wisely take off any more poundage.

Mr. Boston

"I am going to return to Europe following the Christmas holidays," said Tony. "Johnny Rogers, who has been representing Dan Carroll in Europe, expects to have two or three bouts lined up for me at that time."

"While abroad, I engaged in three bouts. I won two of them, while the final decision on my bout with Adolph Heuser in Berlin was a draw. At first the referee disqualified me on the ground I pushed Heuser through the ropes, but the boxing commission later reversed this finding and made the official verdict a draw. The commission decided Heuser's fall was accidental."

"A crowd of 16,000 attended my tussle with Heuser."

"In England, bantamweights, featherweights and lightweights are drawing the most money. Glasgow, Scotland also goes for the little fellows. It is not uncommon for bantamweights to draw $45,000."

"Jack Doyle, Phillips, Larry Gaines and Al Delaney are the best heavyweight cards in England."

"George Cooke is still boxing in England, but is obliged to accept ordinary matches."

"Boxing has been drawing well in England for the past two years. The labor law that requires that a British subject be one of the principals in each bout has helped boxers who live in England or who come from the Colonies."

Shucco in England During Crisis

SHUCCO WAS in Manchester, England during the European war crisis.

"The English people were remarkably calm during the great emergency," said Shucco. "They may have been suffering emotions inwardly, but they didn't show it. They went about the task of getting ready for war in a business-like manner."

"There were thousands of dugouts and trenches built in yards and parks where the people planned to go in the event of airplane raids."

"Like the rest of the inhabitants of Manchester I got in line and secured my gas mask. They were grim, dark days, and everybody was happy when war was averted."

"Even in those critical days, life went on as usual in England. Sports events drew large crowds."

"Dog racing is very popular in England and in Ireland. The social leaders have their own racing dogs, and tremendous crowds attend the races outside of London. English people are much interested in the progress of horse and dog racing in New England. Those persons who visited Boston at the time of the international races at Revere a year ago returned to England with high praise of the manner in which dog racing is conducted at Wonderland Park in Revere."

I asked Shucco if he planned to do any boxing in this country before he returns to England.

"I am ready to take on any of the first class heavyweights," declared Tony. "I feel I have the boxing skill and speed plus a fair punch to win."

New High for Race Track Betting

THE OFFICIAL figures released by Chairman Charles F. Connors of the Massachusetts Racing Commission show that the amazing sum of $48,991,865 was wagered by 2,842,358 persons who attended horse and dog track meetings in Massachusetts this year. This was a new high, and represented a steady climb from 1935, the first year of legalized racing in Massachusetts, when $34,579,420 was poured through the mutuel machines.

The Racing Commission and the tracks may well be proud of the fact there has not been a single racing scandal in Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts tracks fared better this year than did those in New Hampshire and Rhode Island in the matter of attendance and mutuel handles. Rockingham was unfortunate in the matter of racing, while Narragansett has encountered acute economic situations in Rhode Island that have cut into the mutuel handle.

All New England tracks, however, have had good racing, and over a period of years are certain to make money. Betting will level off with the years, but this condition will ultimately be beneficial to all persons interested in the future of racing.

$2,008,000 Net for State

THE STATE received approximately $2,008,000 net from racing, according to Chairman Charles F. Connors. The state's total share was $2,154,876.

At the start of the racing season, despite the fact the country was then in a depression period, Chairman Connors predicted the state's end from racing would top $2,000,000.

Hearst All-America Trial Bouts Monday

Novices Have Chance To Score

Hail All-America!

The first trial bouts in the Hearst All-America amateur boxing championships will be held at the Arena on next Monday night. The Irish American A. A. will co-operate with the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser in staging these matches, which should furnish tremendous ring action.

There will be bouts in the eight championship classes of 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division. Experienced boxers as well as novices will receive opportunities to throw leather.

There will be additional trial bouts at the Arena on November 14, November 21 and November 28.

Then will come the New England finals at the Garden on December 5 and the All-Eastern finals at the Garden on December 12. In the All-Eastern finals there will be teams representing New England, New York, Syracuse and Baltimore. This tournament will be the high spot of the local amateur boxing season, and is expected to draw more people than a year ago, when more than 50,000 witnessed the stirring action.

The tournament is open to every amateur boxer in New England. Get your entry in today and prepare for the big show.

The grand national finals will be held in Detroit in January.

Cover Up

'Fat' Spears Row

DETROIT, Nov. 1 (AP)—A soft answer to the dressing room rumpus featuring rival coaches after the Toledo-Wayne football game, Saturday, was indicated from administrative heads of the Detroit school.

Fists had swung a bit—witnesses agreed to that much—when Dr. Clarence W. Spears, Toledo University coach, paid an impromptu visit to the Wayne locker-room, and later Joe Gembs, Wayne mentor, expressed fears for future football relations between the institutions.

Ellis Wins Diamond At Arena 'Pure' Show

Eddie Ellis of the South End, a promising Negro boxer, covered himself with glory last night at the Irish-American Amateur show at the Boston Arena when he was voted the best fighter on the card which was witnessed by 5000 fans.

Secretary Timothy Sullivan of Fish Pier fame, presented the latest "pure" sensation with a diamond ring. Ellis carried off honors in the 147-pound class, beating Jim Ranahan and Al Priest.

The feature event of the show was the 10-second knockout by Joe McDonald of Medford.

McDonald, a stiff puncher, kayced Donald Garceau of Taunton with a wicked right-hand punch over the bridge of Garceau's nose.

Fran Murray Hopes To Fill Mills' Place

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1 (AP)—Armed with chalked footballs and little flags, Franny Murray, University of Pennsylvania star booter of 1935 and '36, hopes to take up where the late Leroy Mills of Princeton left off as professor of Coffin Corner kicking.

Murray, who was taught by Mills, works out several times during the week at a local field.

He comes on the field after practice with his footballs chalked to show how his boot hits them to start the punt.

He sticks a flag at the 10-yard line, then proceeds to kick the football out of bounds within the 10 and the goal line.

FUNDAMENTALS SAME

"I thought I knew something about kicking a football at Penn," he says. "But I'm just getting into the subject now. Why, the things that Mills knew and the results his theories bring when thoroughly applied are a field to themselves in this game."

"If I could take a boy with the natural police for kicking, work with him in spring practice, watch him through a summer, he should be worth a good bit to his team by the first game that fall."

The fundamentals of all three kicks—punt, placement and dropkick—are the same, Murray declares: (1) balance, (2) aim, holding the eye on ball, and (3) timing and co-ordination.

The type of kick is determined by the angle of the ball in meeting the foot.

To "kill" a ball, says Franny, you cup the toe and finish the kick rocking backward on the left foot. By "killing" Murray said he means to make the ball stop or bounce back upon hitting the ground.

CALLS HIS SHOTS

To kick high, low or in between is a matter of raising or depressing the toe. A spin if generated by the slice off the instep makes punts go out of bounds on the roll.

"Now, just to show you," Franny said, "where do you want me to kick this one?"

He was standing near the side line at midfield.

"The one-yard line is okay with me," said the reporter.

"Well, watch this," Murray said, taking aim. Sure enough the ball bounced out on the one.

Selections for Fast Track
BEST BET—Bull Lea, 5th
NARRAGANSETT PARK, R. I.
Nov. 1—Bull Lea shapes up not only as the probable winner of the $500 Aquidneck Handicap, but as the safest wager of the entire meeting.

For if ever a horse figured to win, it's Bull Lea. With only one or two exceptions, he is meeting practically the same field that he so soundly whacked in the Autumn Handicap.

True, the flashy son of Bull Dog adds five additional pounds and must make large weight concessions to almost every one of his opponents. But on the last race, there's no chance of any handicapper bringing up any of his opponents unless he uses tons instead of pounds.

FIRST RACE

Time Interval, Gala Hunter, Ferdelance.

TIME INTERVAL, third to Petard and Ma O My in most recent race, shapes up as the logical choice in the opener. GALA HUNTER, which displayed keen early foot in his only outing, figures next best in what appears to be a strictly two-horse race. FERDELANCE, away since Rockingham Park, will be a keen money possibility if up to a good race.

SECOND RACE

Mixed Weather, Flying Rapture, Little Harzan.

MIXE DWEATHER was given a couple of nice gentlemen at Jamaica and shipped here to get the money. A word to the wise should be sufficient. FLYING RAPTURE, which drubbed Spot Heel and won the most recent race, will be dangerous if he gets postwads. The same goes for LITTLE TAZAN, which won his last race with the talent looking out the window.

THIRD RACE

Learned, Free Again, Worthing.

LEARNED is last on the also eligible list and must be classed as a doubtful starter. With the top selection on the sidelines the race would seem to order for FREE AGAIN, which drove off Otoman in his last race. WORTHING won his last race in easy fashion and he cannot be ignored for the bridge-jump on the class ladder.

FOURTH RACE

Crowning Glory, Ball Out, Equerry.

CROWNING GLORY finished second to Siavonia in a swift run sprint the other day. The increased yardage of the fourth race is fully within the realm of his staying powers, and he needs only to be given his head to clinch brackets. BALL OUT, which raced well in better company on New York tracks, looms the only danger. EQUERRY won his last in fast time. He moves up several rungs on the class ladder.

FIFTH RACE

Bull Lea, Wise Prince, Scrooge.

BULL LEA again will have WISE PRINCE to drug. The latter was a leg-weary second to the top selection in their recent meeting. However, he has a weight shift of seven pounds in his favor in this event, and he should be somewhat closer at the finish. SCROOGE had support straight as a string last Saturday. On that race, he figures to prove a difficult nut to crack for the show award.

SIXTH RACE

Passing Eve, Combahee, Dead Calm.

PASSING EVE zoomed a mile and seventy yards in 1:44.3 to score a half length defeat over Combahee and in her most recent essay. George Alexander's charge drops a single pound off that effort. If she shows, Pricemaker Mickey Brooks is going to demand a congressional investigation. COMBAHEE was beaten only three parts of a length by the top selection in the above race, and on cold dogs he figures only a scant nose behind. EQUERRY gets a long figure on her recent win, and she may prove

Hanley Still Trying

B. U. Shifts Team For Tampa Game

By MURRAY KRAMER

Can Boston University come back? This question confronts not only Coach Pat Hanley but the Terrier players and followers as well. And there's no answer as yet. One thing is certain, though, and that's the fact that Pat Hanley won't give up.

Some of the veterans have not produced, and there are going to be perpetual shakeups until a winning combination can be found—if possible.

The only definite starter against Tampa who was on field for the opening whistle last Saturday is Captain Johnny Walker.

Joe Lanata and Bill Barry, a pair of sophomores who were third-string wingmen two weeks ago, will start at the end berths instead of Ken Skoropowski and Jim McDonald.

Joe Giannotti moves to "Red" Kopecky's spot at left tackle, and the chances are that there will be a few more changes in the line, too. The backfield is even more unsettled.

George Ratcliffe, regular right halfback all season, is now fighting Earle Crompton for the quarter-back berth; Johnny Niemcure, third string fullback last week, will even with Al Clark for the vacancy created by the shifting of Ratcliffe; Solly Nechtem is out with a dislocated shoulder, which leaves the left halfback spot open, and the struggle for fullback honors is still on even between Ralph Salvi and Rik Lary.

It's going to be interesting to see how this makeshift lineup will go against Tampa Saturday at Nickerson Field, Weston.

Jimmy Dunn, Northeastern coach, swung back into action today. Jimmy was quite a booter when he started at Western Maryland and has decided to return to his old job.

The Huskies mentor will spend at least fifteen minutes each day booting to Santo Cannava, his new tailback, who will play safety on defense. Safety is new to Santo, and Jimmy is going to make certain that his new ace will drop no boots.

Santo will start in place of Bob Guernsey against American International in their lights Friday evening.

Bob Pastor Scores K. O.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Bob Pastor, New York state heavyweight champion, who once back-peddled 10 rounds in the ring with Joe Louis technically knocked out George (Big Boy) Bracker of Buffalo, N. Y., in the fourth round of their 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Palace. The referee stopped the fight after 1:40 of the fourth. Pastor weighed 194½ pounds, Bracker 231½.

Pastor, making his first start since a training camp accident prevented his meeting Gunnar Barendson several weeks ago, smashed Bracker about the ring with short rights and battered him to the canvas 12 times in the short bout.

Hostak Choice in Krieger Go

SEATTLE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Middleweight Champion Al Hostak, whose last 17 opponents have averaged only three rounds against him before being put to sleep, risks his title tonight against Solly Krieger, Brooklyn Jewish boy, who never has been knocked off his feet.

With that "irresistible force, immovable object" motif, Promoter Nat Druksman expects a bumper crowd of about 9500 to watch the scheduled 15-round.

It will be Hostak's first title defense since he won the crown by knocking out Freddie Steele of Tacoma in the first round here last July. Fans, remembering how quickly he lowered the boom of Steele, have installed the "Savage Slav" as favorite.

Hostak will be meeting a rough, tough customer though in Krieger. Solly is a puncher who is at his best against punchers.

Krieger, too, is a distance fighter, getting better as he goes along. Nobody knows whether Hostak can go 15 rounds or not—he's never had to.

Passas, Mack In Title Go

One of the most bruising bouts hereabouts in years is expected tomorrow night at the Boston Arena when Paddy Mack from Benn Sizte shoots the works in an effort to strip Steve Passas of the world's junior heavyweight wrestling championship.

There is plenty of feeling between the Greek Marvel and the popular Irishman and neither will spare the horses. Experts figure Passas.

Ruth in Line for St. Louis Post

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 1 (INS)—Babe Ruth still stands a chance to get that big league pilot's post he seems to have such a yen for.

Ruth, former New York Yankee home run king, and Frankie Frisch, erstwhile pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals, are among those who have applied for the job of managing the St. Louis Browns in 1939. William O. Dewitt, general manager of the club, said today.

Another applicant is Buck Newsom, ace right-hand pitcher of the Browns, who won 20 games last season.

Morris Turns 'Pro'

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1 (AP)—Glenn Morris, who became a movie Tarzan after winning the Olympic decathlon championship, turned to professional football today as a means of earning a living.

The tall track and field ace, who once played end in the Rocky Mountain Conference, has been signed by the Hollywood Stars for their game Sunday with the Los Angeles Bulldogs.

Garcia Tough Foe For Armstrong

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sports' oldest cliché, the one about the good little man not being able to lick the good big man, has been dusted off to front for the argument between Henry Armstrong, the welterweight champion, and Ceferino Garcia, the scarred Filipino from Los Angeles who bids for Henry's title tomorrow night in the Garden ring.

It is most apt. Garcia is a good big man for a welterweight. He can fight middleweights without harm—he banged Glen Lee recently—and he will go into the ring for the 15-round bout around 147 pounds.

Armstrong, who is as good a little man as you can find, has fought welterweights, but no Garcia. He took the title from Barney Ross last spring, but Ross never was a full-blown welterweight. He was a lightweight who fought best around 135.

FEATHER YEAR AGO

Henry is even smaller. He weighed less than 135 for the Ross fight and butte in which he took the lightweight title from Lou Ambers.

Just a year ago he was known as a very good featherweight. Now he is taking on a big, tough fellow who will outweigh him by ten or 12 pounds and who can hit and be hit by middleweights.

And Ceferino can pop 'em. He has a crazy right hand his manager calls the bolo punch that will drop any man nine times out of ten. He is strong, very willing and utterly without imagination. The only thing against him is he never has beaten a first class fighter.

The good big man says he will stand off and smack Henry dizzy with his bolo punch. His manager, George Parnassus, says he will do it in seven rounds or less.

And what has the good little man from St. Louis to say to that?

No fighter has a surer regard for his own ability than Henry the Hammer but to date his ring work has made him a whale of a steer.

"Well, he can throw that punch all he wants. He can hit a guy with it if the fellow stands off and lets himself be hit. I don't stand off and I don't stand still. I'm hard to hit, because I'm moving. All this talk about him doing the hitting—I'll get in a couple myself."

18,000 TO ATTEND

A couple of hundred would be more like it. Henry is no knockem-dead hitter but he hits with the rapidity of a Lewis gun. After the enemy absorbs a few hundred Armstrong punches his knees begin to wobble and his arms grow weak and tired. Then Henry walks in and knocks him down.

When the fight was made Garcia was a heavy favorite over the little man who failed to knock out Ambers in 15 bloody rounds. But the long cut in Henry's lower lip is almost healed. He is hitting sharper and faster after a two-month rest. The odds are down to 6 to 5 and take your choice.

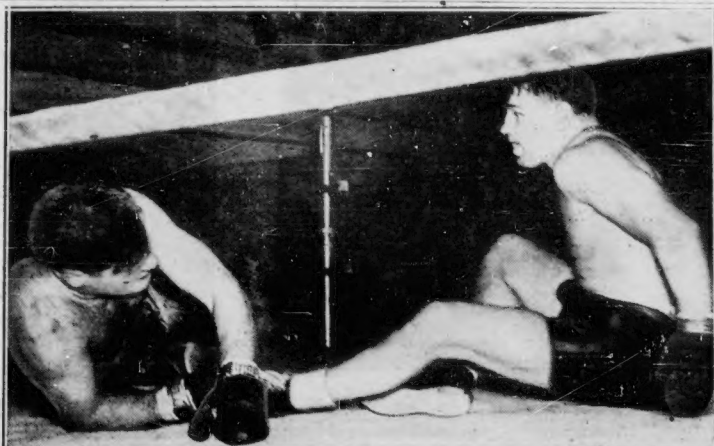

All of which proves there is something in this good little man—good big man argument at that.

Sports Mirror

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Assa Rushnell, Princeton graduate manager, named executive director of New Eastern Intercollegiate Association, centralizing all sports activities; record national pro football league crowd of 50,000 saw New York Giants tie Chicago Bears, 3-3.

THREE YEARS AGO—John Henry Lewis won world light-heavyweight championship by out-pointing Bob Olin in 15 rounds.

FIVE YEARS AGO—Reports circulated of big shakeup in Philadelphia Athletics, involving sale of Lefty Groves to Boston and Mickey Cochrane to Detroit.
